Provo, UT – July 31, 2009

Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions celebrates its 10th anniversary. Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions (RMUoHP) hosted 150 honored guests for the celebration of its 10th anniversary. An Open House, held on RMUoHP's Provo, Utah campus, was held on Friday, July 31. Dignitary remarks by university founder, Dr. Richard P. Nielsen, President of RMUoHP, and university supporter, Mayor Lewis Billings were given on the successes that RMUoHP has brought over the last ten years.

"Thousands of people from all over the United States fly into Salt Lake and travel to Provo to visit, teach in and work with the university," said Nielsen. "They eat in our restaurants; they stay in Provo's hotels and contribute to our community."

RMUoHP now joins Brigham Young University, University of Utah and Utah State University in being one of four academic institutions in Utah who offer doctoral degrees.

RMUoHP was delighted to invite local healthcare leaders, government members, academia and the press, to celebrate along with our distinguished students, alumni, faculty and staff.

On August 1, at 11:00 a.m., RMUoHP will conduct commencement ceremonies for its honored graduates at the Provo Tabernacle.

About Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions:

RMUoHP offers doctoral degrees for current and future healthcare providers and educators, including athletic trainers, physical therapists, nurses, and occupational therapists. RMUoHP's non-traditional model enables students to complete advanced degrees without relocating. Curricula emphasize specialized education in advanced clinical, research, and academic areas. RMUoHP is currently developing a residential Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) degree program which is scheduled to start in May 2010.
