Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions hosts Open House for inaugural residential Doctor of Physical Therapy program.

Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions (RMUoHP) hosted over 250 attendees at an Open House celebration for its inaugural residential Doctor of Physical Therapy program on Tuesday, May 11th.

The event was held on RMUoHP's Provo, Utah campus, and included remarks from the President of RMUoHP, Dr. Richard P. Nielsen, the President of the American Physical Therapy Association, Dr. Scott Ward, the President of the Utah Valley Chamber of Commerce, Scott Densley, and others.

The Open House also included a ribbon-cutting ceremony by the Utah Valley Chamber of Commerce for the new Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) Aegis Therapies building. There was food and guided tours of the campus including the new Physical Therapy building. Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions would like to thank all of those who attended and invite any interested parties to visit the campus.

About Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions:

RMUoHP offers doctoral degrees for current and future healthcare providers and educators, including athletic trainers, nurses, occupational therapists, physical therapists, exercise physiologists, and chiropractors. RMUoHP offers a non-traditional model for the Doctor of Science (DSc) degree in Clinical Electrophysiology, Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) degree in Health Promotion & Wellness, Pediatric Science, Orthopaedic & Sports Science, Nursing, and Athletic Training, a Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) degree for nurse practitioners, and transitional Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) and Occupational Therapy (OTD) degree programs. The non-traditional model enables students to complete advanced degrees without relocating. Curricula emphasize specialized education in advanced clinical, research, and academic areas. The traditional model includes the entry-level Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) degree program.
